

DEVICE-CARRIED ANTENNA AND METHOD OF AFFIXING SAME

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An antenna not requiring screws etc. for affixing it to a liquid crystal display unit, able to be applied in the same shape and dimensions even for units of different dimensions or shapes, and giving a good radiating characteristic and gain characteristic of the antenna itself, provided with a support designed to straddle a projecting ridge of a housing and supported by the housing, a ground contact spring extending from the support to the side surface of the unit to contact the side surface of the unit, and an antenna element extending from the support to the opposite side of the support from the ground contact spring; the support, ground contact spring, and antenna element being formed integrally by sheet metal.